Divest from fossil fuels

We are living in a time in which we are responsible both for our own future, and that of the generations to come. Universities, thus, need to act in accordance with the intrinsic social responsibility that comes with being a modern educational and research institution. It is both paradoxical and unethical that universities keep investing in fossil fuel companies and thereby profiting from preventing the achievement of a sustainable future.

UiB must therefore divest its endowments from fossil fuel companies, thus taking a stand on our role in the future of our planet.
